2016 Seed Library

The 2016 Seed Library launches this month in both library locations and on the Bookmobile. The first seeds will be available for checkout the last week in March, and there will be a kick-off celebration April 1 in Berea. This year's seed selection will include heirloom and organic varieties, as well as locally-collected and donated seed.

In conjunction with the seed library, common garden tools including rakes, spades, hoses and shovels, are available for check-out in both locations. We've also expanded our garden book collection with a focus on pollinators.

Finally, the library is partnering with Sustainable Berea, the Berea Neighborhood Food Project, Grow Appalachia, and others to present educational garden programs each month. Topics range from raised bed planning to succession planting, soil health, and others. Regular monthly sessions will be held the third Tuesday, 6:30-7:30 PM in Berea. Each session will feature a tasting of seasonal vegetables. Adjunct programs will be scheduled throughout the year.
